Protecting labour rights in our supply chain

NHM's approach

- "A future where people and planet thrive"
- Sedex
- Electronics Watch
- Awareness and Preparedness

NHM and Sedex

- Focus on garments and toys
- Require all new suppliers – and key contractors' suppliers – to join the database
- Visibility of shared factory audits and corrective action plans

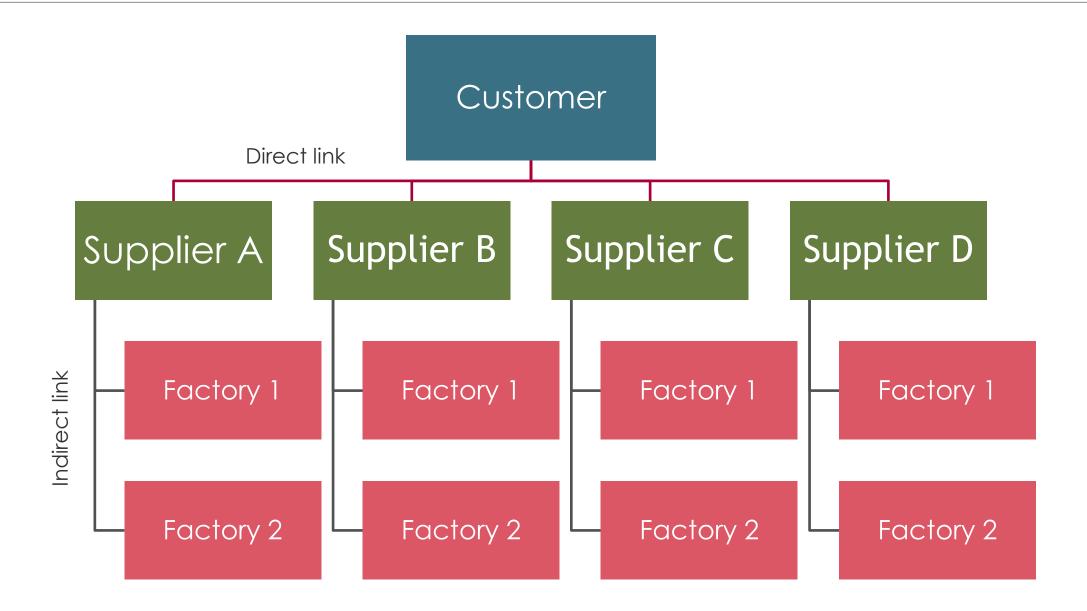

Sedex®

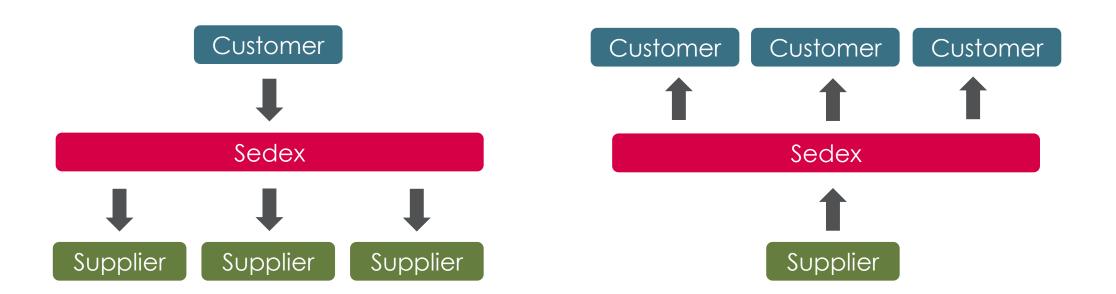

"Using the Sedex system to link to our suppliers and view their current audits makes the process simple yet very effective. We can view up to date and robust information and the suppliers are spared the inconvenience of yet another audit"

Sharon Childs The Sourcing Team

Customer account structure

The Sedex model

Buyers can manage all their suppliers' data in one place, run reports and carry out risk assessments. Suppliers can share data on the responsible practices of their business with multiple buyers, in an industry-standard format

Where Sedex operates

Drawbacks of Factory Audits

- Factory audits offer just a snapshot of conditions
- Careful selection of reputable auditors is essential
- Only unannounced audits leave no opportunity for audit preparation
- An audit may only consider a single tier of a product's supply chain
- Resource-hungry for busy buyers, if doing it properly.

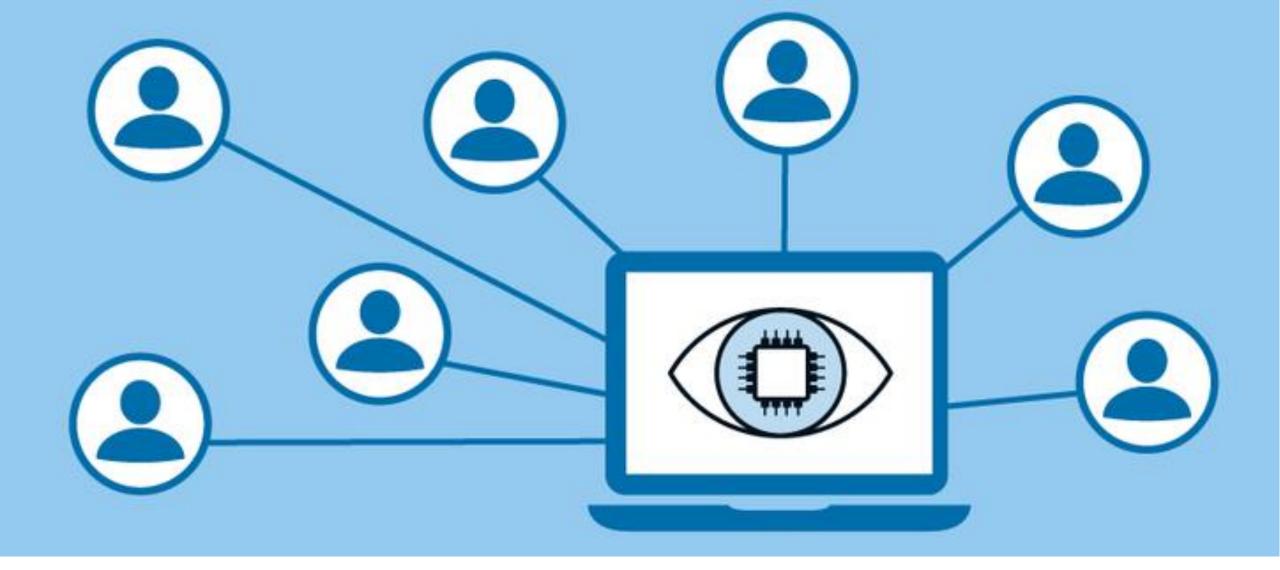

Advantages

- They provide evidence of what an expert party witnessed at the factory on a given day.
- They can provide vital information.
- They're not just for garments!

DELL
